COMRADES AND BROTHERS.

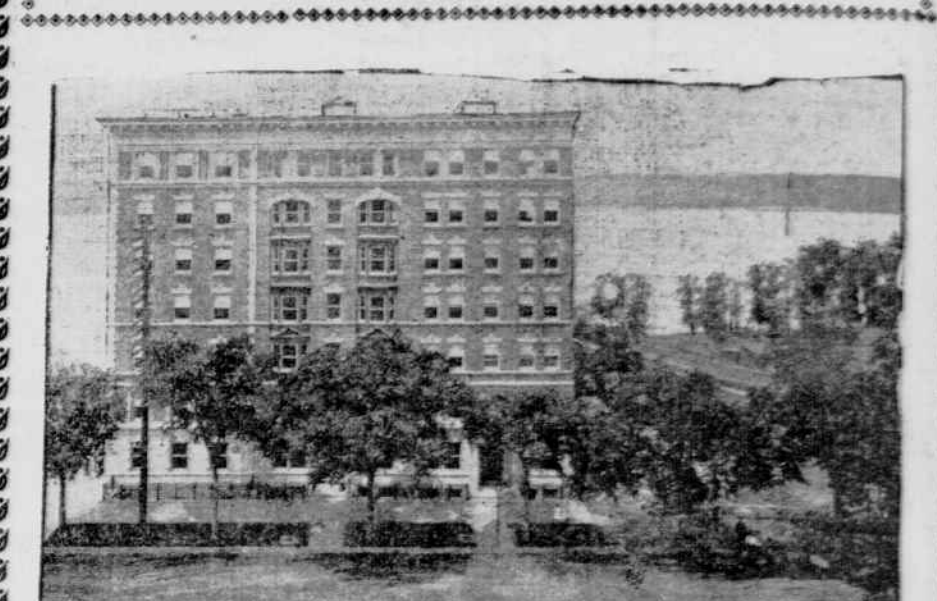

From The Edinburgh News.
By a curious chance of empire, the gates of Peking were shut when the legations were finally cut off on two brothers who belonged to quite different branches of the British service, and might have been divided by hundreds of leagues. Dr. Worsworth Paine, the medical officer of the legation, and his younger brother, an officer in one of the companies sent up at the last moment to guard the legations.

YOUNG MR. SHEN AN AMERICAN.

A CHINESE LEGATION BABY NAMED WASHINGTON.

Washington dispatch to The Baltimore Sun.

Shen Washington, or Washington Shen, as Americans would say, is the name of the youngest member of the Chinese Legation.

Shen Tung, first secretary of the legation, is the proud father of Washington Shen, as he is to be called, for his parents, besides dressing him as an American baby, having decided that he is to be reared as a young American, have started by Americanizing his name. The baby was born on August 19 at Chevy Chase, the home of the Chinese Legation, but all other persons who possibly can see the baby, take the greatest interest in it. When the news of the child's birth was told Minister Wu he was greatly pleased, as the child's name was the name of the Chinese Legation.

Mrs. Shen, the baby's mother, has only two words of English at her command, but they are invaluable to her, especially when she wishes to rescue Washington from too eager admirers. Then it is that she slips "Washington—aspice!"

In consecrating their baby to American ideas and customs the Shens have done away with the bright red clothes that in China are supposed to bring good luck, and in which Chinese babies are invariably dressed. Washington is attended by a nurse, and one great question yet to be solved, and one which every one hesitates to ask either father or mother, is whether or not Washington's head is to be trained to produce a queue.

IN TRAINING FOR MORAL SEASON.
From The Chicago Evening Post.

"Do you believe in moral season?" asked the neighbor.

The indignant father stopped with the switch poised in the air.

"Of course I do," he answered. "I tried it once, and I'm going to try it again just as soon as I feel, to be ruled by it the next time I try it. Yes, sir, moral season is a great thing, and I'm going to teach this boy how to do it. It is I feel to whole the life out of him to do it. He doesn't appreciate its advantages yet."

AN OLD SEAL RECOVERED.

From The London Telegraph.

Quite unexpectedly the Worshipful Company of Joiners has regained possession of its valuable corporate seal, which had been missing for nearly a century. The seal dates back to the year 1521.

The curious feature is that it was formerly kept in a chest having three locks and three keys, and how it ever went astray no living man knows.

The long lost seal, which had been presented to the guild by Sir Joseph, who, in acknowledgment of the discovery and the gift, has received an embossed vote of thanks, bearing at the foot the impress of the seal, this being the first use to be made of the restored property.

TRUNKS FROM PARIS SEIZED.

SPECIAL AGENT'S VISIT TO A DRESS-MAKER'S HOUSE ATTRACTS A CROWD OUTSIDE.

The Custom House authorities, following their determination to put a stop to the practice which is persisted in by some fashionable dressmakers of buying gowns and costumes in Paris as models, and bringing them into the country without paying the duty provided for such importations, have seized the trunks of Mrs. Elizabeth Shanahan, of No. 11 East Fifty-sixth-st., and of Mrs. Anna E. Conlin, of No. 5 West Thirty-eighth-st. Mrs. Shanahan was a saloon passenger on the Auguste Victoria, which arrived on Tuesday last.

W. H. Theobald, special Treasury agent, ordered Mrs. Shanahan's two trunks to be detained. By some oversight the baggage was passed by the inspectors and removed from the pier. When Mr. Theobald learned this he went to the woman's home and removed the trunks. It was said that for about two hours on Friday he was refused admittance, but that finally, after some of the neighbors began to display some interest in his presence, he was admitted and the trunks handed over to him.

Mrs. Conlin's luggage was detained because, as Mr. Theobald asserted, she had endeavored to bring models of Parisian costumes into this port without declaring them. The contents of the trunks belonging to Mrs. Shanahan and Mrs. Conlin, which comprise a fine collection of costly costumes, were sent to the Public Stores for appraisement.

DYING MAN TURNED ADRIFF.

TAKEN TO THE METROPOLITAN HOSPITAL AND FOUND IN THE STREET NEXT DAY.

A man poorly dressed, with sunken jaws, was found lying at Forty-fourth-st. and First-ave. on Thursday by a policeman of the East Fifty-first-st. station. He said he was Dennis Kenny, thirty-one years old, and homeless. Dr. Stewart said the man had consumption, and took him to Flower Hospital, where he was transferred to Bellevue. He was later taken to the Metropolitan Hospital on Blackwell's Island.

Last night Policeman Thornton, of the East Fifty-first-st. station, found the same man lying at Forty-fifth-st. and First-ave., in a dying condition. He was taken to the station, and Dr. Stewart again responded to a call. The man was taken to Flower Hospital and transferred to Bellevue. Kenny said that he was turned out of the Metropolitan Hospital yesterday afternoon, in spite of his dying condition, and turned adrift in the city.

FRENCH WOMAN AND CHILD FOUND.

THEY CAME HERE TO EMBARK FOR FRANCE AND BECAME SEPARATED.

A young French woman named Julia Collett Toroux came to New-York with her husband, Camille Toroux, and her two-year-old son, Germaine, on August 31, on their way from Worcester, Mass., to France. That night they went to a French hotel at No. 28 MacDougal-st. On Saturday morning, September 1, the wife and son went out to take a walk and disappeared. Camille was frantic with grief and reported the disappearance to the police, who sent out a general alarm. Neither the woman nor child could speak any English.

At 6:30 o'clock last night Policeman Thomas Kenny, of the West Thirtieth-st. station, was at Twenty-eighth-st. and Sixth-ave., when he noticed a woman and child lingering on the corner. He went up to them and found that they were French. Calling a French merchant, who interpreted for them, he found that it was the missing woman and child. They were taken to the West Thirtieth-st. station, and the husband was sent for. He was overcome with joy when he saw his wife and child and wept when he embraced them.

The woman said that on the Saturday of her disappearance she went out to take a walk with her son and got lost. Not being able to speak English, she was unable to tell any one her predicament, and was finally directed by well meaning citizens to the West Thirtieth-st. station. On Saturday morning, September 1, the wife and son went out to take a walk and disappeared. Camille was frantic with grief and reported the disappearance to the police, who sent out a general alarm. Neither the woman nor child could speak any English.

GRASPED RAILS AND LOST BOTH HANDS.

Bound Brook, N. J., Sept. 8.—Katie Cago, nine years old, the daughter of Italian parents living here, had a narrow escape from death this morning. She was playing on the Lehigh Valley Railroad bridge, near the Bound Brook Woolen Mill, and failed to notice the approach of an express train in time to get off the structure. The child had the presence of mind to lie down on the ties outside of the rails, but he did not to the track. The wheels of the locomotive crushed both of her hands.

JERSEY CENTRAL FIREMAN KILLED.

Red Bank, N. J., Sept. 8.—Daniel Duffield, a fireman on the Central Railroad of New-Jersey, was instantly killed while his train was crossing a trestle near this place to-night. When the train was half way across the bridge Duffield leaned out on the engine too far, and his head struck an upright beam. He fell to the ground, and he was dead when the engineer reached him. Duffield was fifty years old. He lived in Jersey City and leaves a family.
